

Campaign Performance Summary - Q3 2025

Overview

This document summarises marketing campaign performance for all major title launches in Q3 2025. Total marketing spend across all channels was $187M with a blended ROI of 2.1x.

Stellar Run - Campaign Analysis

Stellar Run remains our most successful marketing campaign in company history. The title's viral TikTok campaign (#StellarRunChallenge) achieved 50 million impressions with an 8.2% click-through rate - 4x the industry average. YouTube pre-release trailers garnered 120M views combined. Social media engagement drove an additional 35% ticket uplift in the 72-hour window around the sequel announcement. Cities with highest campaign performance: New York (engagement score 9.2), Los Angeles (8.9), Tokyo (8.5).

Dark Orbit - Campaign Analysis

Dark Orbit's marketing campaign underperformed expectations. Despite a $120M production budget and significant TV advertising spend, social media engagement remained below benchmark. The campaign's action-focused creative did not resonate with the 18-24 demographic. CTR on digital channels averaged 2.1% versus a target of 4.5%. Recommend A/B testing emotional storytelling angles for future Action titles targeting younger audiences.

Comedy Genre - Campaign Challenges

Comedy titles continued to show weak organic reach. Influencer partnerships for Summer Laughs and The Laughing House delivered below-average conversions (3.2% vs 6.8% platform average). Audience research indicates subscribers perceive our comedy content as formulaic. Recommendation: partner with established comedy showrunners or acquire proven IP.
